State-Tech, Centre-Harvard and Virginia-Princeton Tilts Attract Gridiron Fans

DARTMOUTH PLAYS CORNELL

By EDWIN J. POLLOCK Intersectional engagements in football are getting the call in interest among the gridiron fans of the East. Battles between representative teams of the East and South or the East and West are becoming more popular than ever before and three such exhibitions are stuck right in the center of the are stuck right in the center of the sport picture today.

Two of these are figured to be real wild and woolly affairs. The third is believed to be a walkover for the East, upsets are very frequent. Any-

Up in the neck of New England, Centre College, 1500 miles away from home, will take on Harvard, and over in New York, Georgiu Tech., all the way from Atlanta, Ga., will thoroughly entertain Penn State. These are the two big intersectional games on the card. The third will be staged at Pelaceton, where the Tigers and the Princeton, where the Tigers and the University of Virginia enter into com-centre College has walloped numerous teams in the South, and Harvard stu-dents have been wondering if it means anything. They will find out today, anything. They will find out today. Harvard, on the other hand, also has made a splendid record this season, despite the 21-21 tie with State, and the Crimson is sure to give the Praying Colonels a terrine battle. Harvard reigns the favorite. Georgia Tech will make another pil-grimage to the North, and if tradition is to be followed another Northern vic-tory will be scored. The Atlanta athletes have played Pittsburgh three times in the North and have been beaten just as often. State is being tried this year to try to break the jinx. Penn Has Never Defeated the Pittsburgh Panthers

Glenn Warner's Pittsburgh elevens have yet to suffer defeat at the hands of Penn. Ever since the series started in 1915, the Smoky City collegians have been victorious on every becasion except one, when Bert Bell's eleven in 1919 held the Panthere to a 3-to-3 tie.

Penn suffered his worst defeat in 1918, when the S. A. T. C. team was swamped under a 37-to-0 score out in Pittsburgh. In 1916 Penn lost 20 to 0, in 1917 14 to 6, and last year 27 to 21.
